

Guar Seed

Price is now sustaining above the 5400 support zone (S1), with moving averages flattening—suggesting a transition from bearish momentum to a consolidation-to-bullish bias.

On the upside, immediate resistance is placed near 5550 (R1), followed by a stronger hurdle at 5750 (R2). A sustained move above 5550 could confirm further upside towards higher resistance levels. However, failure to hold above 5400 may reintroduce selling pressure, dragging prices back towards 5300 (S2). Overall, the bias remains cautiously positive as long as prices hold above key support, with a breakout continuation likely to drive the next directional move.

Guar Gum

Price is now sustaining above the 9850 support (S1) and hovering around the 20 EMA, indicating early signs of consolidation with a mild bullish bias as selling pressure weakens.

On the upside, immediate resistance is seen near 10250 (R1), with a stronger supply zone placed at 10750 (R2). A sustained move above 10250 can open the path for further upside continuation. However, any failure to hold above 9850 may push prices back toward 9600 (S2), keeping the broader structure range-bound. Overall, the bias remains cautiously positive, with price action suggesting a base formation after the recent breakout.

Jeera

Unlike a confirmed breakout, the recent price action shows hesitation near the trendline resistance, indicating that bullish momentum is still not fully established. The 20 EMA is flattening, and price is hovering around the 22000 (S1) zone, suggesting a consolidation phase with a neutral-to-cautious bias.

On the upside, a decisive breakout above the wedge resistance and 22950 (R1) is required to confirm a shift toward bullish continuation, which could open the path toward 23950 (R2). However, failure to sustain above 22000 may attract renewed selling pressure, dragging prices back toward 21150 (S2). Overall, the structure remains indecisive, with price at a critical juncture where a breakout or breakdown will define the next directional move.

Turmeric

Price is currently hovering near the lower boundary of the pattern around 14400 (S1), with the 20 EMA sloping downward—indicating persistent selling pressure and lack of bullish strength. The recent price action suggests consolidation near support, but no clear reversal signals are visible yet.

On the upside, immediate resistance is placed at 15500 (R1), followed by a stronger barrier at 16300 (R2), which also aligns with the upper wedge boundary. A breakout above this zone is required to signal any meaningful trend reversal. However, a breakdown below 14400 could extend the decline toward 14000 (S2), keeping the broader structure bearish. Overall, the bias remains negative unless a decisive breakout confirms a shift in momentum.
