| Key Highlights

- Nifty50 rebounds 7.5% in Apr, its strongest gains in 28 months
- RBI held report rate unchanged, GST collection touch record highs
- Q4FY26 earnings remain resilient, led by BFSI, Metals

Indian equities staged a sharp recovery in Apr'26, with the Nifty50 gaining 7.5% MoM — its strongest monthly performance in 28 months and the first positive monthly close after four consecutive months of decline. The rally was broad-based, with the Nifty Midcap 100 (+13.6%) and Smallcap 100 (+18.4%) significantly outperforming, supported by easing geopolitical concerns, attractive valuations and a resilient Q4FY26 earnings season.

The geopolitical backdrop has turned increasingly constructive since late April. Earlier escalation in West Asia had pushed Brent crude toward ~$126/bbl and the INR to a record low of ₹95.5/USD, raising concerns around imported inflation and external stability. However, recent diplomatic progress between the US and Iran, including reports of a proposed memorandum aimed at de-escalation, has improved global risk sentiment. Markets have begun pricing in a gradual normalization of energy supply risks and easing tensions around the Strait of Hormuz.

On the policy front, the RBI maintained the repo rate at 5.25% with a neutral stance in its April policy meeting. While the central bank revised FY27 GDP growth lower to 6.9% and raised its CPI inflation forecast to 4.6%, the policy stance remained balanced given the largely imported and supply-driven nature of inflation. Meanwhile, GST collections hit a record ₹2.43 lakh crore in April, reflecting continued strength in economic activity, though growth was primarily led by import-linked collections.

India's strategic and defence engagement also continued to gain momentum, with progress across submarine, shipbuilding and defence technology partnerships with countries including Germany, South Korea and Italy. These developments reinforce the government's continued focus on domestic manufacturing, defence indigenisation and long-term strategic investments.

The Q4FY26 earnings season has remained resilient so far. As of 30th Apr, 101 companies in the MOFSL coverage universe had reported results, with aggregate earnings growth at 16% YoY, broadly in line with expectations. The earnings momentum has been led by BFSI (+16% YoY), Metals (+54% YoY).

Overall, improving geopolitical sentiments and resilient domestic macros have helped revive market confidence. With valuations at ~19x 1-year forward P/E, earnings visibility remaining healthy and domestic institutional flows continuing to provide support, we expect markets to witness a gradual recovery with increasing stock- and sector-specific opportunities.

Technical & Derivatives Outlook

- Nifty index started April on a positive note on account of easing geopolitical tensions and recovered most of the losses of March. It gradually escalated to 24600 with some cool off towards the end. Bulls were seen buying at any minor declines and held on to the higher levels.
- Technically, Nifty formed a bullish candle on the monthly chart with longer shadows on either sides but continued to form lower lows from the last four months. For May, positional supports are seen at 23750 and then 23500 zones, while on the up side hurdles have shifted higher to 24600 then 25000 zones.

Derivative Strategy

BULL CALL BUTTERFLY: May Series

Nifty

- The April series marked a strong comeback by the bulls with the index rallying sharply by over 1500 points supported by easing geopolitical tensions.
- The technical structure improved significantly with the formation of higher lows on the weekly chart indicating a shift in bias from sell on bounce to buy on dips.
- Open Interest (OI) data suggests higher Call writing at the 25000 strike while significant Put writing at the 24000 level provides a strong support base.
- A Bull Call Butterfly Spread strategy is recommended to capitalize on a moderately bullish outlook while managing risk effectively.

IRON BUTTERFLY: May Series

Bank Nifty

- Bank Nifty index has been consolidating on weekly time frame from last few weeks as momentum is missing at either sides.
- On daily scale, Index has been lower highs structure as selling pressure is seen at higher zones but multiple supports are intact at lower levels.
- On the derivatives front, Maximum Call OI is at 56000 strike while Maximum Put OI concentrated at the 54000 strikes.

Commodities & Currency Outlook

- U.S.–Iran conflict, now in its 10th week, has triggered one of the largest physical supply shocks in recent history.
- Physical crude surged toward $150/bbl, prompting warnings of the “greatest energy security crisis in history”, as markets rapidly repriced geopolitical risk and supply scarcity.
- A brief ceasefire in early April led to a sharp price correction, highlighting how fragile sentiment remains.
- During the ceasefire window, Iran allowed limited passage, but flows tightened again after Apr 13 as tensions resurfaced and naval activity continued eventually pushing prices back up.
- Saudi rerouting via Yanbu is running at partial capacity (~2–3 mb/d), as Red Sea threats cap scalability.
- Saudi Arabia’s decision to cut June OSPs to Asia signals that refiners are under pressure.
- Global inventories have fallen to around ~101 days of demand, while refined product buffers have also tightened, pointing to real physical stress in the market.
- UAE’s exit from OPEC marks the biggest structural shift in the group since 1960.
- UAE might now considering increasing output its ~4.85 mb/d capacity vs. ~3.2 mb/d OPEC quota.
- OPEC’s output hike for June (+188 kb/d) remains symbolic, as actual supply remains constrained.
- U.S. launched “Project Freedom” to escort vessels, but Iran’s counterattacks on ships kept risk premiums elevated.
- Isolated escorted shipments proved that flows are possible but not scalable, meaning supply risks have shifted from absolute disruption to intermittent, high-risk availability.
- Until there is any clarity on the US Iran war front, every diplomatic headline will now inject sharp two-way volatility: peace signals compress the risk premium hard, escalation snaps it back equally fast.
